

To Whom it May Concern:

As a public Librarian I depend upon the Connecticard system to ensure the continued access to knowledge that libraries are entrusted to provide. The Connecticard system allows not only myself but also my patrons to read the newest novel or the most obscure text. It saves our budget and allows us to focus our limited budget toward current items. The back catalog of books that exists is staggering and the access that the Connecticard system provides is essential. Without this system in place the quality of our libraries would suffer dramatically. Currently patrons have the right and ability to borrow from any library in the state and return those books to any library in the state, ensuring their access to knowledge is free and unhindered. I strongly urge you not to take away this invaluable service and continue to fulfill the mission of all libraries.

Sincerely,
